Where can I buy cannabis?

Adults 21 and older can purchase cannabis from licensed dispensaries. Licensed dispensaries have strict rules that ensure products are manufactured, processed, tested, and labeled accurately. A list of licensed dispensaries can be found at cannabis.maryland.gov (see Industry Licensee tab).

How much cannabis can I possess?

You can purchase and possess up to 1.5 ounces of cannabis flower, 12 grams of concentrated cannabis, or a total amount of cannabis products that does not exceed 750 milligrams THC. This amount is known as the “personal use amount.”

You can gift cannabis to adults 21 and older if the amount gifted falls within the personal use amount and no money, goods, or services are associated with the transfer.

Where can I use cannabis?

You can use cannabis in private homes and on private property, but smoking cannabis in public is prohibited. This includes parks, streets and sidewalks, bars and restaurants, moving cars, and public transportation (e.g., buses, vans, trains, taxicabs, limousines).

Property owners can ban the use of cannabis on privately owned property. If you rent, read your rental agreement to see if there are restrictions.

Most hotels do not allow guests to smoke cannabis in their hotel room. Ask the reception desk about the hotel's policy. If you stay in a vacation rental, check with the property owner about the rules for your stay.

Can I grow cannabis at home?

You can grow two indoor plants per household, out of view. Importantly, landlords and property owners can prohibit growing cannabis on their properties.

Can I travel with cannabis?

Cannabis remains illegal under federal law. You can't use or possess cannabis on federal land (including federal buildings, national parks, military bases, etc.). You can't transport cannabis across state lines, even if it's between states where adult-use cannabis is legal. It is not legal to send cannabis through the U.S. mail.

Is it safe to drive after consuming cannabis?

Cannabis use impairs your ability to drive safely. It can result in slower reaction time, coordination, and concentration. If you are impaired while driving, even as a certified patient with a medical card, a law enforcement officer can pull you over and conduct a sobriety test. You can receive a DUI citation.

What about cannabis in the workplace?

Check with your employer about their policies. The new law does not prevent employers from drug testing employees. Marylanders who are federal employees should follow federal employment policies related to cannabis possession and use.

If you are transporting cannabis in your car or vehicle, it should be in the trunk or in a sealed package. You can't consume cannabis in moving cars — this includes smoking, vaping, and consumption of edibles.

How should I dispose of unused cannabis?

Proper cannabis disposal helps prevent accidental exposures, particularly to curious children or pets. To dispose of unused cannabis, crush or chop up remaining cannabis, put it in an empty container, and mix with something unappealing (coffee grounds, soil, kitty litter); cover, seal, and dispose of it in the trash.

What do I need to know about edibles?

Always check the amount of THC on the label — edibles can look identical but have different strengths!

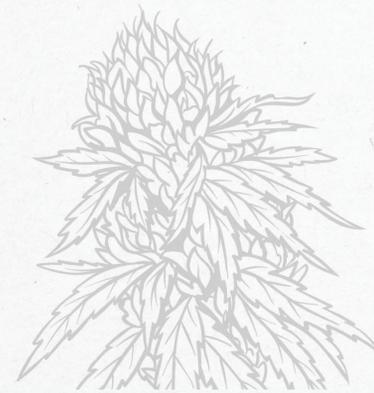

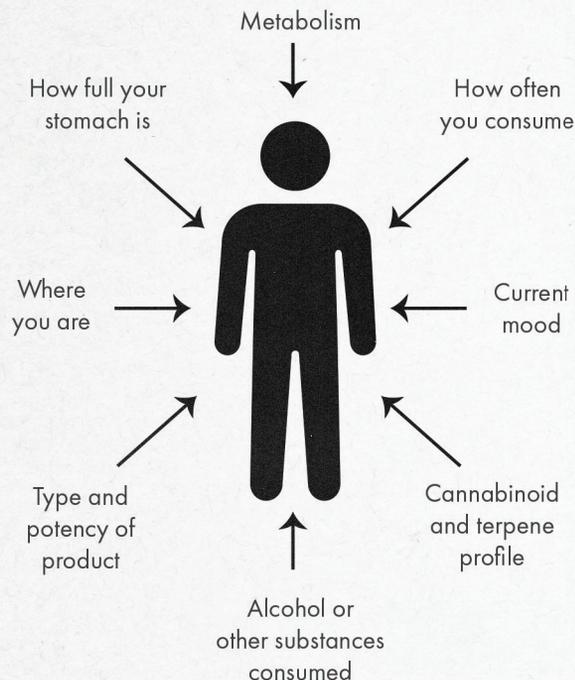

You may need to cut an edible in half or quarters to consume the dose you want.

Effects from edibles are often delayed and last longer than smoking or vaping cannabis.

What affects my cannabis experience?

It's not just how much THC you take that determines how high you feel. The following can affect each experience:

What are tips for a safer cannabis experience?

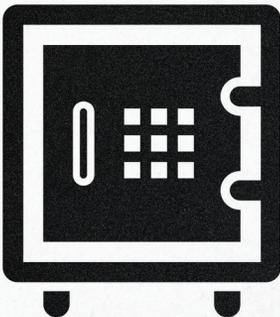

DO

- ✓ Purchase regulated and tested cannabis from a licensed dispensary
- ✓ Start with a low dose (1-2 puffs or 2.5 mg THC) and wait a few hours before consuming more
- ✓ Ask your healthcare provider if you have medical concerns

DON'T

- ✗ Mix cannabis with alcohol, tobacco, other intoxicants or stimulants
- ✗ Drive after consuming cannabis
- ✗ Smoke in public spaces

Where should I store my cannabis?

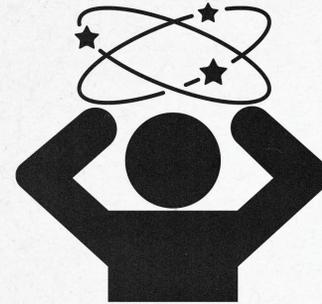

Keep all cannabis products locked up, out of reach, and out of sight

Use a safe or lockbox (these may be available to purchase at dispensaries)
